USCIS Met FY 2020 H-1B Cap

On April 5, 2019, USCIS had received sufficient H-1B visa cap petitions for the 2020 fiscal year (FY), to meet the annual 65,000 H-1B visa cap and the 20,000 H-1B visa master's cap (U.S.-advanced-degree visa exemption).

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) began accepting H-1B Cap Visa Petitions on April 1, 2019.

H-1B visa petitions that are not selected will be rejected and returned with their filing fees.

What is an H-1B?

H-1B petitions are temporary work visas for positions requiring theoretical or technical expertise in specialized fields for qualified foreign nationals to live and work in the U.S. Many H-1B foreign nationals have successfully gone on to apply for and obtain lawful permanent residence status (also known as, green card).

Foreign nationals with at least a bachelor's degree or the equivalent may be sponsored for H-1B visas. A broad range of positions may fall under H-1B specialty occupations, and each case depends on a position's own set of circumstances necessitating complex legal analysis.

Some H-1Bs Are Not Subject to H-1B Visa Cap

Not all H-1B petitions are subject to the visa cap, depending on the types of H-1B petition being filed or entity-sponsor. For examples, when applicable, foreign nationals who already have approved H-1B petitions or H-1B status may still have H-1B petitions filed for them to extend their H-1B status, or to change or add H-1B employers.

Duration of H-1B

In general, H-1B work visas are approved for three years each time (up to a total of 6 years). Under certain circumstances, H-1B work visas may be extended beyond the 6-year maximum time limitation.

H-1Bs Not Selected or Filed When All H-1B Visa Numbers are Used Up

Potential H-1B candidates who do not make it to the 2020 FY H-1B visa cap (October 1, 2019 employment start-date) have the options to have their H-1B cap visa petitions submitted or resubmitted to USCIS on or after April 1, 2020 (October 1, 2020 employment start-date) for the FY 2021 H-1B visa cap. They may also consider other immigration options such as other temporary or green card status, if eligible.
